White Rose (7 shops)

Charitable activities: White Rose is a chain of handpicked recycled fashion retail clothing shops. Established in 2009, by two Nottingham Trent University students, following a trip to Rwanda to see how the genocide in 1994 had torn the country apart and see how the charity - The Aegis Trust was doing vital work with survivors to build peace was a major inspiration for the students to do something to help. Upon their return they set up White Rose shops, opening the first store in Hockley, Nottingham. Due to its success, White Rose continued to grow to the chain of shops it has today, with all profits raised from sales going to support the work of The Aegis Trust. The Aegis Trust is an international organization, which through peace building works to prevent genocide and mass atrocities in communities around the world. Aegis honours the memory of the victims of genocide and enables students, professionals, decision-makers and a wider public to meet survivors and learn from their experiences.
