

UNCOVERING YOUR PURPOSE

As we draw the series to a close, we would like to encourage you to take a moment to reflect on the impact of what you have heard, shared and experienced, and what does this mean for your purpose?

We would like to offer you some questions that can help to elicit your purpose. Take your time and write down your responses to the following questions. Knowing what you now know, what is truly important to you?

Consider:

- Your family
- Your money
- Your time
- Your health
- Your career

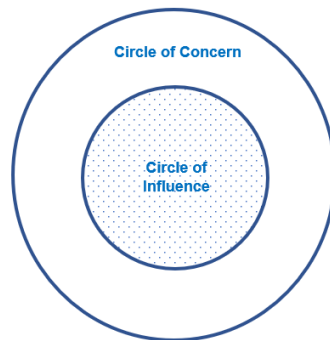

Now think bigger, what about in the world?

Consider:

- Global and local leadership
- The environment
- Inclusion
- Social responsibility
- The economy

You maybe familiar with the work of Covey's model Circles of Influence. If you have not you can learn more by following this link before considering the next set of questions.

Thinking about the answers you gave to the questions above, what can you do to widen your circle of influence?

- What commitments could you make that mean you are living your purpose?
- What can you do to live the life that you want and are committed to?
- Spend a moment imaging living the purpose that you have identified-what is now possible?

It may be worth considering these questions in the light of the next 3 months and then again for the next 12 months and beyond.
