

What to expect from a BCRP?

Information sharing	Tackling and preventing crime
Intelligence coordination – retailers can easily report everything to their crime partnership directly. Crime managers collate intelligence and distribute to the partnership and business community Sharing information- to identify prolific offenders, help identify peak incident times, inform guarding strategies and identify patterns of offending Secure data being shared- businesses have access to real-time data, DISC secure messaging and slower-time preventative data to familiarise themselves with prolific offenders Links with national data on travelling offenders	Exclusion policy (civil) - lists of all offenders banned from premises within the BCRP/local area. A breach of an exclusion policy can be used to show persistent levels of offending, it can also be used as evidence for criminal interventions like Criminal Behaviour Orders (CBOs) Evidence for prosecution - engagement and assistance when providing victim and business impact statements Public protection - support the identification of vulnerable people and facilitating diversionary routes where necessary Crime prevention advice - alerting members to emerging threats or crime types and providing guidance on prevention
Access and engagement	Training and upskilling
Regular communication between businesses and the BCRP, both in person and electronically via real-time messaging and regular crime bulletins Community element to BCRP membership- a feature of DISC includes links direct to the Local Authority for easier reporting. Provides a platform for businesses' voices to be heard Links into local policing- ensuring businesses' issues are acknowledged and providing updates on operational policing	Feedback on outcomes- of incidents, breaches or prison releases to keep members up to date Sharing of lessons learnt- highlighting best practice amongst the business community Training for businesses- to increase resilience. Sessions often include: employee support, safeguarding, reporting, conflict management, gathering and presenting evidence
